SIGNALS AND WHAT TO DO WITH THEM

OBSERVABLE	WHAT TO DO WITH IT
Her priority is AI in daily work [3]	Why it matters: she inspects AI use.
Talyx offers meeting-prep and knowledge tools for executive teams [15]	Bridge: decisions made on checked facts.
Q3 earnings land Oct 20 [8]	Ask for time after earnings only.

MEETING APPROACH

WHAT THE RECORD SHOWS	YOUR MOVE
Pace and control: biweekly review; safety-first meetings [3][14]	Match their pace; propose once, then ask.
Appetite for detail: asks teams to show work [3]; cites share [13]	Headline, two proof points, a source on request.
Appetite for risk: "done making predictions" [4]; EV charge [11]	Pair the upside with the safeguard in the same sentence.
How they keep score: growing China share [16]; pickup lead [13]	One peer reference is useful; more is noise.

MEETING SCRIPT

Facts select the moves; read the room, never the record · Mary Barra, General Motors · Prepared Oct 14, 2026

1. OPEN

- Hook: You review how your teams use AI every other week [3]. I would like to hear what that has changed.
- Credibility: Talyx builds meeting-prep and knowledge tools for executive teams [15].
- Insight: North America margin rose 2.5 points to 8.6% [12] while EV losses are set to fall $1-1.5 billion [7]; prepared decisions compound.
- Rule: answer her questions with a headline and one proof point before asking yours.

2. QUESTION ORDER

- Story: What has the biweekly AI review changed in how your teams prepare for decisions [3]?
- Process: How do product and software choices reach you, given the chief product officer reports to Reuss [6]?
- Gate: What must you see before the next EV decision, with EV losses due to improve $1-1.5 billion [7]?
- History: Where did the skilled-trades AI start-up example spread beyond that one team [5]?
- Commitment: Would 30 minutes with your AI review team work better before or after the Oct 20 earnings call [8]?

3. OBJECTIONS: NAME IT, THEN ANSWER

- "We are focused on earnings and EV costs." Fair; results come Oct 20 [8]. Thirty minutes after that stays off your critical path.
- "We have our own AI teams." You review them every other week [3]. We fit around their work; we do not replace it.
- "Send something first." Gladly: one cited page on GM's public record, like the guidance raise to $14-16 billion [2].

4. CLOSE

- Restate: ask what would make a second meeting an easy yes, then say it back in her words.
- Real deadline: Q3 earnings on Oct 20, 2026 [8].
- The ask: 30 minutes with her AI review team after Oct 20 · Fallback: 15 minutes with its lead.
- Follow-up: the one-page example within two days.

Next step: send the one-page cited example by Oct 16, 2026.

5. READ THE ROOM (WATCH, DO NOT ASSUME)

- Fast, wants the answer: headline first, one proof point such as 42% pickup share [13].
- Asks for terms and data: bring the numbers, such as the 8.6% margin [12].
- Talks about people: follow her lead on the small team she reviews with [3].
- Big picture, ideas: tie to safety as the overriding priority [14].

6. IF IT STALLS

- The move: ask how product choices reach her, given the chief product officer reports to Reuss [6].

7. GUARDRAILS

- Rule: promise no savings, results or accuracy; make no claims about competitors; cite only public sources.
- Never say: "Does that make sense?" · "Is this helpful?" · "No pressure" · "You'd know better than me" · "Just checking in"
